4th Australian Drymix Mortar Meeting, Manly, Sydney, NSW

From the beginning of time, people dwelled on this splendid peninsula governing which was later to become the Sydney Harbor (North Point, Manly) and here were the first encounters with colonists in January 1788. Apart from being an important strategic location, the area was used as a quarantine station from 1828 until 1998, when passengers of entire ships were quarantined there to protect Sydney and Australia from diseases such as the plague, smallpox, cholera or the spanish flu. Q-Station, as the area was called later, is part of Australia's National Heritage and a National Park Site. And, since 2006, also a hotel - and this is where we come in:

The 4th Australian Drymix Mortar Meeting will take place on Thursday, 15. February 2018 at Q-Station, Sydney, NSW. As in our previous events, this event will give drymix mortar experts from Australia, New Zealand and beyond to meet, network and exchange new ideas in a casual and concentrated atmosphere. The scientific program will be presented in our next newsletter. For the tourists among us: there is a great and cheap boat ride from Circular Quay (between the Opera House and the Harbor Bridge) to Manly, you should at least make it once.
